Building Information Modeling (BIM) Training Workshop for Architects - Autodesk Revit Architecture

Trainers   Mr. Rhoel D. Maliksi & Ms. Shee Siew Hoon

INTRODUCTION

The future in the building industry is Building Information Modeling (BIM), a process of experiencing the building digitally and functionally before it gets built. BIM helps construction professionals visualize, simulate, and analyze a project before construction even begins. Autodesk Building Information Modeling (BIM) software enables architects and designers to create and communicate design intent and understand performance, appearance, and cost early in the building design process.

Revit software - purpose built around the concept of BIM - is a 3D modeling software that provides architects the tools to easily capture and analyze design concepts, and more accurately maintain coordinated and reliable design data through documentation and construction. Many architects, engineers, and construction professionals are familiar with and use AutoCAD® software. Migrating from AutoCAD to Autodesk® Revit® Architecture software may sound like a simple upgrade, but it's more than that - it's a process evolution.
